Established by the Boundary Waters Treaty of 1909 between Great Britain and the United States. The Commission approves or disapproves applications for uses of water which affect the natural level of flow of boundary waters, investigates questions or matters of difference along the common frontier and monitors compliance with terms and conditions set forth in Orders of Approval it has issued. The Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement of Nov. 22, 1978 confers additional responsibilities on the Commission by requesting the Commission to monitor the implementation of the Agreement and to advise Governments on the adequacy of programs specified in it.

Operated under the authority of a convention originally entered into by the Republic of Costa Rica and the U.S. in 1950. Principal duties are to study the biology, ecology and population dynamics of the tunas and related species in the Eastern Pacific Ocean. Also determines the effects that fishing and natural factors have on stock abundance. Recommends appropriate conservation measures to maintain stocks at their maximum sustainable yields.

Shares of funding are based on the amount of tuna taken from the area by each country. The U.S. is assessed for between 85% and 90% of the Commission's total funding.

The staff consists of approximately 30 scientists, 15 technicians and five administrative members who operate from the headquarters at La Jolla and the field offices at Terminal Island, Calif., Mayaguez, P.R.; Ensenada, Baja California, Mexico; and Panama, Ecuador and Peru.

Publications: Bulletin of the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission, Annual Report.

International North Pacific Fisheries Commission

H. Douglas Johnston, Donovan F. Miller, Joseph A. Garcia, Michael Z. Florian, representing Canada.

Established by a convention between Canada, Japan and the United States in 1952; convention ammended in 1978, for the conservation of the fisheries resources of the North Pacific Ocean. Responsible for overseeing the fisheries and recommending management plans for the north Pacific outside the extended U.S. and Canadian fisheries zone.

Publication: Annual Report, (English and Japanese) Statistical Year Book, Bulletin (English and Japanese)

International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission

Box 30
New Westminster, B.C., Canada Z3L 4X9
Tel: (604) 521-3771

Director: A.C. Cooper

Established by convention between the United States and Canada in 1937 and amended by protocol in 1957 for the protection, preservation and extension of the sockeye and pink salmon fisheries in the Fraser River system.

Six commissioners are appointed by the Governor General of Canada and the President of the United States, three from each country and all expenses of the commission are borne equally by each country.

Regulates the closing and opening of fishing periods and areas in any fishing season. Regulates the fisheries to allow an equal portion to U.S. and Canadian fishermen of pink and sockeye salmon to be caught each year. Endeavors to secure proper escapements of the pink and sockeye runs. Involved in increasing fisheries resources. Conducts research on the two species.

The advisory committee consists of six persons from each country who are representatives of various branches of the industry, including, but not limited to purse seiners, gillnetters, trollers, sportfishermen and processors.

International Pacific Halibut Commission

P.O. Box 5009
University Station
Seattle, Wash. 98105
Tel: (206) 634-1838

Director: Donald A. McCaughran
Assistant Director: Richard J. Myhre
Commissioners:
Michael Hunter, chairman; Peter C. Wallin, John A. O'Connor; representing Canada.
William S. Gilbert, Niels M. Evens, Robert W. Schoning representing the United States.

Established in 1923 by a convention between Canada and the United States for the scientific investigation and management of the Pacific halibut resource.

Governing board consists of six commissioners, three appointed by the Governor General of Canada and three by the President of the United States. The commissioners appoint a director who supervises the scientific staff that collects and anlayzes statistical data needed to manage the halibut fishery. Staff consists of 13 biologists and 10 administrative, technical and clerical personnel. These are assisted by 15 temporary people stationed to collect data in Seattle, Vancouver, Prince Rupert, Petersburg, Sitka, Juneau, Pelican, Seward and Kodiak and at sea on Commission charter vessels.

Expenses are shared equally by the United States Dept. of State and Canada Dept. of Fisheries and Wildlife.

Conference Board:

An advisory panel representing Canadian and United States halibut fishermen and vessel owners. Created by the Commission to obtain recommendations from the fishermen on conservation measures.

Advisory Group:

Members: Robert Alverson, Steinar Antonsen, Marvin Bellamy, Sid Dickens, Tom Gordon, Brian Kelly, Don Kuiper, Dick Marino, Sig Mathisen, Ray Potter, Albert Davis, Tom Thompson

The Advisory group includes representatives from the Conference Board and from industry and are selected to represent various geographic areas. Members attends the Commission meetings when regulatory decisions are made.

Publications: Annual Report, scientific reports, technical reports and regulations on halibut fishing.

Canada

H.A. Regier, H.P. Johnston, K.H. Loftus, M.G. Johnson.

Created in 1955 in response to the invasion of the sea lamprey into the upper Great Lakes that was disatrous to the sport and commercial fisheries.

Duties include monitoring the status of fish stocks, the levels of exploitation and habitat conditions. The commission also conducts research programs for the rehabilitation of the Lakes, resolves boundary disputes between the U.S. and Canada, conducts a sea lamprey control program and develops joint management plans for the U.S. and Canada. Also acts as liaison between the two country's regulatory agencies.

The United Nations

FAO Liaison Office for North America

1776 F St., N.W.
Washington D.C. 20437
Tel: (202) 376-2306

Director: Don C. Kimmel
Information Officer: Nicholas Raymond

FAO Liaison Office at the U.N.

Rm. 2470
U.N. Headquarters Building
New York, N.Y. 10017
Tel: (212) 754-6039

Representative to the U.N.: T.N. Saraf
Information Officer: Miss Beryl Bernay

FAO has no fisheries programs in North America. The two offices maintain libraries that are available for research. However, they do not lend publications. FAO publishes several books and reports including an annual, Yearbook of Fishery Statistics. It also conducts several conferences concerning world fisheries. Dates of conferences are available from the above offices.

Books published by FAO are listed in the "Directory of Book Publishers and Books."

The following are other documents available from Uni Pub, 345 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10010, Tel: (212) 686-4707

FAO Fisheries Reports

A series of reports of conferences, committees, commissions, working parties, surveys and other activities of the FAO Department of Fisheries.

FAO/UNDP Reports

A series of reports of surveys, seminars, training centers and other activities of the FAO Department of Fisheries under the United Nations Development Program.

FAO Fisheries Technical Papers

These documents, given restricted distribution, are prepared mostly as papers for conferences, committees, commissions, working parties, seminars and training centers, or as summaries of compendia of information for use of member governments, organizations and specialists.

FAO Fisheries Circulars

These documents, given very restricted distribution, are mostly short notes, instructions for the completion of statistical forms and questionnaires and lists on various topics or provisional versions of documents which may eventually be issued in final form in one of the preceding series. Some circulars, presenting statistical tables with provisional data, are prepared as papers for conferences, committees, commissions and working parties. They may eventually be issued after revision in the Yearbook or Bulletin of Fishery Statistics.

The first session of the Third U.N. Law of the Sea Conference was held in 1974 in Caracas, Venezuela, and since there have been yearly extensions with the delegations meeting alternately in Geneva and New York.

The Conference is probably the most ambitious international treaty negotiation ever undertaken with some 157 nations participating. Because of the large number of negotiators and because the Conference has agreed that any treaty will be a complete "package," the outlook for total agreement is unlikely.

However, the issue of commercial fishing was one of the first issues to be unofficially settled. Generally, the international community has agreed to the 200-mile fisheries conservation zone concept with the exception of Latin American nations which have decreed 200-mile territorial seas. "Territorial" seas can limit freedom of navigation, overflight and research.

The Conference has basically been divided into two camps — one being the developed countries and the other the "Third World" or underdeveloped nations. In 1978, the largest controversy was still the question of deep sea mining of minerals. The U.N. has agreed that deep sea minerals — including manganese nodules — are the property of mankind, and the wealth is to be shared with all the nations of the world. The underdeveloped nations call for strict control of any offshore mining while developed nations are trying to negotiate limited controls.

It was doubtful that the controversy would be resolved in the near future and the U.S. was preparing to pass legislation that would protect the investments of U.S. firms that were preparing to begin commercial mining offshore.

The following are the three main Conference committees and the areas of their negotiating responsibilities:

Sub-Committee I

International regime for the sea-bed and ocean floor beyond national jurisdiction: Nature and characteristics; International machinery; structure, functions, powers; Economic implications; equitable sharing of benefits bearing in mind the special interests and needs of the developing countries, whether coastal or land-locked; Definition and limits of the area; Use exclusively for peaceful purposes.

Sub-Committee II

Territorial sea: Nature and characteristics, including the question of the unity or plurality of regimes in the territorial sea; Historic waters; Limits; Question of the delimitation of the territorial sea; Breadth of the territorial sea; Global or regional criteria; Open seas and oceans, semi-enclosed seas and enclosed seas; Innocent passage in the territorial sea; Freedom of navigation and overflight resulting from the question of plurality of regimes in the territorial sea.

Contiguous zone: Nature and characteristics; Limits; Rights of coastal States with regard to national security, customs and fiscal control, sanitation and immigration regulations.

Straits used for international navigation: Innocent passage; Other related matters including the question of the right of transit.

Continental shelf: Nature and scope of the sovereign rights of coastal States over the continental shelf; Duties of States; Outer limitation of the continental shelf; Question of the delimitation between States; Natural resources of the continental shelf; Regime for waters superjacent to the continental shelf; Scientific research.

Exclusive economic zone beyond the territorial sea: Nature and characteristics, including rights and jurisdiction of coastal States in relation to resources, pollution control and scientific research in the zone; Duties of States; Resources of the zone; Freedom of navigation and overflight; Regional arrangements; Fisheries; Exclusive fishery zone; Perferential rights of coastal States; Management and conservation; Protection of coastal State's fisheries in enclosed and semi-enclosed seas; Regime of islands under foreign domination and control in relation to zones of exclusive fishing jurisdiction; Sea-bed within national jurisdiction; Nature and characteristics; Delineation between adjacent and opposite States; Sovereign rights over natural resources; Prevention and control of pollution and other hazards to the marine environment; Rights and responsibilities of coastal States; Scientific research.

Coastal State preferential rights or other non-exclusive jurisdiction over resources beyond the territorial sea: Nature, scope and characteristics; Sea-bed resources; Fisheries; Prevention and control of pollution and other hazards to the marine environment; International co-operation in the study and rational exploitation of marine resources; Settlement of disputes.

High seas: Nature and characteristics; Rights and duties of States; Question of the freedoms of the high seas and their regulation; Management and conservation of living resources; Slavery, piracy and drugs; Hot pursuit.

Land-locked countries: General principles of the law of the sea concerning the land-locked countries; Rights and interests of land-locked countries; Free access to and from the sea, freedom of transit, means and facilities for transport and communications; Equality of treatment in the ports of transit States; Free access to the international sea-bed area beyond national jurisdiction; Participation in the international regime, including the machinery and the equitable sharing in the benefits of the area; Particular interests and needs of developing land-locked countries in the international regime; Rights and interests of land-locked countries in regard to living resources of the sea.

Rights and interests of shelf-locked States and States with narrow shelves or short coastlines; International regime; Fisheries; Special interests and needs of developing shelf-locked States and States with narrow shelves or short coastlines; Free access to and from the high seas.

Rights and interests of States with broad shelves.

Regional arrangements — to be dealt with by each Sub-Committee, in so far as relevant to its mandate.

Archipelagos.

Enclosed and semi-enclosed seas.

Artificial islands and installations.

Regime of islands: Islands under colonial dependence or foreign domination or control; Other related matters.

Responsibility and liability for damage resulting from the use of the marine environment — to be dealt with by each Sub-Committee, in so far as relevant to its mandate.

Settlement of disputes — to be dealt with by each Sub-Committee, in so far as relevant to its mandate.

Peaceful uses of the ocean space: zones of peace and security.

Transmission from the high seas.

Sub-Committee III

Preservation of the marine environment: Sources of pollution and other hazards and measures to combat them; Measures to preserve the ecological balance of the marine environment; Responsibility and liability for damage to the marine environment and to the coastal State; Rights and duties of coastal States; International co-operation.

Scientific research: Nature, characteristics and objective of scientific research of the oceans; Access to scientific information; International co-operation.

Development and transfer of technology: Development of technological capabilities of developing countries; Sharing of knowledge and technology between developed and developing countries; Training of personnel from developing countries; Transfer of technology to developing countries.
